for several years.

As a special treat for Troop 101, during the service, Akins welcomed five of the original Boy Scouts from the group that first met in 1960: Joe Cook, Kenneth West, Jim Cook, Rob Patterson and Bo Conley.

Akins also presented First UMC Scouting Coordinator Jeremy Bruce with a photo of Troop 101 from 1960, along with a copy of the original charter.

Troop 101 will hang the charter in their newly constructed Scout Hut, recently provided by First UMC to replace their old meeting place that had seen better days.

Akins highlighted some of the accomplishments of Troop 101 charter members who had become community leaders and successful individuals over the years, and he challenged the Boy Scouts present to continue doing great things in the footsteps of their forebears.

“What a special day to have people from the original charter to be here to celebrate this day,” said First UMC Pastor Mark Burgess. “Bud, your message was heard. Young men, look at the men that you will become. You are the leaders of the future of our community and our world.”

Union County Sole Commissioner Lamar Paris was also recognized during the service, as he was part of the second wave of Boy Scouts in Union County.

“The BSA’s goal is to train youth in responsible citizenship, character development, and self-reliance through participation in a wide range of outdoor activities, educational programs, and, at older age levels, career-oriented programs in partnership with community organizations,” according to Scouting.org.
